THE WORK

This is a Fake Book, a tango analog to the popular jazz Fake Books. To that end, it is intentionally without expressive markings, without tempo indications, rhythmic variations etc. Interpretation is entirely up to the performer. It is, of course, necessary to be familiar with the tango performance style in order to bring this book to life. It is also good for the student of tango, and for the arranger.

All transcriptions were done by me; the 'maw' in the charts stands for Mark Arthur Wyman. I made these over the course of more than four years. They were done as necessity dictated, more or less. Some were done for pleasure, or to correct another existing inaccurate chart, or because i couldn't find any written music. When i had the idea of The Tango Fake Book, then i began to make them because i thought something in particular should be included.

I have tried to simplify melodies as much as possible, to get at the unadorned essence of any tune. Why clutter things up with a bunch of markings in a elementary, silly arrangement à la Korn? My idea is specifically to not influence a performance, to allow full flower of creativity from a performer, in the moment of performance, or when beginning an entirely new arrangement.

Some pieces are easier than others to distill from a complex arrangement. Piazzolla's essential melodic ideas are almost inseparable from his arrangements; Pugliese can present the same difficulties. But insofar as it is possible, i have tried to eliminate indications of an actual arrangement. Make your own!

I have added some markings in the scores just for convenience of reference. For instance, A and B labels for sections of each tune, which i think are more neutral than other labels like Trio, Refrein and so on; or, in some (for ex., Piazzolla's Balada para un loco), intro and outro labels.

Where harmonies are not obvious, or where i could not determine a single basic harmony, i have provided alternates (for ex., Uno). Or melody too (Gallo ciego).

I made most of the tangos in 2/4. Tango seems obviously, to me, to be in 2/4; it is generally danced two steps per measure, and i think the music reflects this. These days many people disagree, and say that all tango should be written in 4/4. Modern tango, especially Piazzolla, Mosalini, Beytelmann and so on, can be and perhaps should be, and so i made an exception for the Piazzolla tangos and transcribed them in 4/4.

The design of the book, cover included, is mine too. It is in A4 size paper. The cover title font is Metro Retro by Nick Curtis.

REPERTOIRE

The choice of repertoire was a bit haphazard. I know most of these tangos because i played them often. Some were from the very beginning of my experience playing in SF (Loca, Oblivion, Cumparsita). These happened to be the ones chosen by Dale Meyer for us to play. Some were from arrangements of orquesta parts. Some are here because of sheer obviousness - a tango musician can't live without them (Choclo, Cumparsita, etc.). Of some i heard fantastic performances or recordings. Some are here because someone told me to learn them or transcribe them, or i had to perform them, maybe with a singer, which is where most of the canciones came from. Some just because i love them and i can't live without them (Organito de la tarde, for example). Some perhaps are not so well known, but i liked them and felt that they should be played more.

But in the end i feel i have compiled here a very good collection of tango, an essential songlist for beginner and experienced tango musician alike. There are represented here some of the very first tangos, through the Golden Age to modern, covering a wide range of tango styles. Included are many of the most popular tangos ever written, along with some less known. The greatest tango composers are present, such as Troilo, Discepolo, Salgán, Filiberto; along with one-hit wonders like Ernesto de la Cruz.

EL CHOCLO.
TANGOS

I remember years ago, argentine bandoneonista Bocha Lopez came to San Francisco. At one point, he gave me a list of tangos to play, maybe 30 or so, the standard ones that he knew for any gig. I looked at the list and thought, hmm, i know one, two, Cumparsita, Choclo, no more. Now i am familiar with them all, and they are here. Another time, Jur Heijnen, a DJ and tango dance teacher with a very nice milonga in Amsterdam, gave me his list of the best tangos a group should play. Again, i knew several, but not many. I learned them, transcribed them, and they too are all here. This has happened a few times, and each time i wrote out the melody and chord--s, and then included them here.

TANGO

Tango is the most beautiful, profound, passionate and complete music i have ever heard. I say complete, because it's got everything in it that i like best in music, all the various styles that i have played. It's got the audacious power of rock, the dirt and rawness and compelling rhythm of folk music, some of the harmonies, and all of the improvisational freedom, of jazz. And classical -- i need absolutely everything i ever learned studying classical to play tango well. Every chop, every etude, all my technique, interpretive skills, all go into tango, because all the infamous difficulties are present: all the blistering runs of octaves, thirds, trills, scales, fast arpeggios, melting legato, and lovely shaping and shading of phrase that you would hear in an average Horowitz or Toscanini performance are all used in good tango performances. In every good tango recording there is much subtlety, balance, grace, elegance. I feel that any number of tango pianists can, at the very least, hold their own against many of the great classical pianists. Horacio Salgán is a fabulous pianist by any standard.

There are three basic rhythms in tango: tango, milonga and vals. A tango has that basic 2/4 (or 4/4) tango feel that we all know and love. A tango vals has a 3/4 rhythm. And a milonga is in 2/4, but has a quicker feel, with a characteristic swing due to a syncopated accent in every measure, an anticipation of the 2d beat. I have included here a selection of all three types of tango.

LAST COMMENTS

This work is not done. How can it be? There are a billion beautiful tangos in the world. I am always adding new ones. I can't help it. It's an obsession, really irresistible. There are so many more to do.

Do you know a tango, your favorite, that unbearably beautiful, irresistible thing you can't get out of your head? Let me know, and it may be included in the next edition, The Tango Fake Book, Volume 2. So many beautiful tangos, milongas and vales in the world...

Do you have comments? criticism? information, such as dates of composition? Do you see a mistake? Please let me know. I am glad to hear from users of this book.

Look for the Tango Fake Book, Volume 2, with a completely new selection of tangos; and the Vocal Tango Fake Book, both coming soon.

DEDICATION AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is dedicated with love and respect to many people, who influenced me and the development of this Tango Fake Book, and i want to thank them for help, encouragement, influence, beautiful music, and general goodness:

First, mainly, much respect to the memory of Dale Meyer. He got me started playing this almost unbelievably gorgeous, rich music, often employing charts similar to these. He helped the tango scene in San Francisco flourish, and was unfailingly friendly, generous, helpful, and honest. He died unexpectedly several years ago, and i still miss him. He was a great guy.

To maestro Horacio Salgán, the greatest tango piano player, much respect and admiration. He is an inspiration.

To Arina with much love, kisses, hugs. She pushed me, helped with this work immeasurably, gave me ideas and lots of support and encouragement and even some love and Julian, the world's youngest tango musician.

To Julie Queen and Paul Lundahl, who in 2003 made my wonderful Buenos Aires experience possible. Now, guys: let's tell some Tango Stories.

To Andrea, who introduced me to Di Sarli among other things, mucho amor y besitos.

To Guillermo and all in Gente de tango, and Julián Peralta, Bruno, and all in Fernandez Fierro with much respect. Thanks for letting me jam with you.

To all my friends and fellow musicians and DJs in Amsterdam: Rob Nuijten, Boris Franz, Santiago Cimadevilla, Wim Warman, Jur Heijnen, all in Amago, Racing Club, and Bandola Zurdo, Juan Otero, Dario Polonara, Juan Pablo Dobal, Orlando Miño, Enrique Caruso, Hernán Ruíz and many more here.

And to all friends and fellow tango musicians in San Francisco: Bocha Lopez, Victor Meneses, Tom Montgomery and all the Mounts of MonTango, Greg Kehret, Paul Binkley, Mike (I) Silverman, Odile Lavault, Seth Asarnow, Tango #9, and Parlando/Strictly Tango.

Thanks for your feedback, help and all your lovely music and inspiration.
